TURKS GAIN IN THE SUEZ CANAL REGION

Ottoman Forces Destroy Three British Transports--Drive Soldiers Back Seven Miles--Three Hundred British Soldiers Killed Near Madan

(Special to The Herald)
Constantinople, (via Berlin and Amsterdam), March 27.—The resumption of the Turkish campaign against the English with marked success for the Ottoman troops at two points is officially announced here today. The statement issued by the Turkish war office reports the destruction of an entire British column at one point and the repulse of British troops at another point. In the latter conflict 300 British soldiers were killed. The official statement says:
“A detachment of Turkish troops during its operations against the Suez Canal met a column of British soldiers near Madan. This column was completely destroyed. Later the Turkish troops successfully bombarded two transports carrying British troops. Another Turkish detachment set fire to a British transport between Shallufa and Adajigul.
“Co-operating with loyal tribesmen, the Turkish soldiers surprised the enemy southeast and north of Sjuacbia on March 16, captured the enemy's position and drove them back seven miles into the town of Sjuacbia. Three hundred British were killed and many others wounded during the engagement. The loss to the Ottoman forces was only 30 killed and a few wounded.”

RUSSIAN DRIVE TOWARDS HUNGARY
(Special to The Herald)
Petrograd, March 27.—Three million this vast army, the Germans are withdrawing the major part of their forces from the Nieman front. The object of the drive on the part of the Russian forces is an invasion of Hungary.

ROOSEVELT ON SHIPPING BILL
Criticizes Wilson and Bryan in Their Effort to Force Purchase Measure.

Washington, D. C., March 27.—The charge that President Woodrow Wilson, and Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan, endeavored in the interest of certain foreign business men to secure for the United States the power to purchase the interned ship of one of the belligerents in the European war, is made by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in his reply to the invitation to testify before the Ship Purchase bill, by investigating committee of the senate.
To quote Colonel Roosevelt: “It appears first, that President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, in their effort to force the purchase of the ship, have been aided by certain foreign business men, who have been studying again and again.”

FIRE DESTROYED HAMPTON HOUSE

Home of William Blake Burned to the Ground Saturday Morning.

The two-family house, owned by William B. Lane at Hampton, was completely destroyed by fire this morning. The house was located in that part of Hampton known as Blakeville, near the North Hampton line. The house was occupied by Mr. Lane and family, and the other part by his son and family, Elmer Lane. The fire probably started from sparks from the wood fires in the stoves catching on the roof, shortly after 9 o'clock, and the Hampton fire department, under the direction of Fire Chief L. C. Ring made good time in the four-mile run to the fire. The department worked hard to check the blaze but as the house was over 50 years old and the high wind added to the flames, little could be done. A large area of grass and brush was burned over and the department was compelled to use several streams to prevent further damage being done. The large barn and shed were saved. Neighbors aided the family and firemen to remove some of the furniture and rendered valuable assistance. The Lane family are being housed temporarily by H. L. Tobey and other neighbors. The loss by fire will probably reach about $5,000, covered by $2200 insurance.

RAISING THE F-4 VERY DIFFICULT

Work of Possible Rescue of Crew of Sunken Submarine Still Going On.

(Special to The Herald)
Honolulu, H. I., March 27.—Great difficulty is being encountered in getting chains about the sunken submarine F-4, and it may be impossible to raise her before this evening, according to a wireless report to the navy yard today. It stated that the officials engaged in the work of raising the vessel believe that some if not all of the 21 men comprising the ship's crew, are still alive. The reason for this belief was not given but it was thought that a signal may have been given from the interior of the submarine.

Harry Vardon, Noted English Golfer, Will Pay Another Visit to America

VARDON

New York, March 27—Lovers of the good old game of golf, and who is it that isn't in love with the splendid sport of the links nowadays?—will be glad to learn that Harry Vardon is coming here after all. The famous English professional player has just cabled that he will be on hand for the opening championship at Baltusrol in June. The presence of Vardon in the American classic will add considerable luster to the event. It will no doubt cause even more interest in the event than in 1913 when Vardon and his teammate Edward Ray, were just nosed out for the title by Francis Ouimet, the now famous Massachusetts player. When Vardon was here before there wasn't half as much interest in the sport here as now. At that time few people believed that an American player had a chance to successfully compete against the British stars and when the youthful Ouimet defeated the foreign cracks, it won thousands of new admirers for the great outdoor pastime. Ouimet will undoubtedly try to capture the open championship again, and it would be a great pleasure for him to do so against such a player as Vardon. The presence of Vardon would inspire Ouimet who is a highly imaginative player, to greater efforts. It is understood that at least four other professional stars from England, will accompany Vardon to America. Edward Ray, George Duncan, James Braid and J. H. Taylor are the players who it is thought will make the trip across.

MORE EVIDENCE AGAINST RICKARD

A revolver, supposed to be that with which Gerald C. W. Rickard fatally shot Samuel B. Trilling in the Dumas cottage at Merrill shore, Lake Massachusetts, was found in the woods not far from the tea house there Thursday afternoon. The weapon has been turned over to the police.

It will be remembered that Rickard fled from the cottage, leaving Trilling writing in pain on the floor, and no revolver being found in the house by the police immediately afterward. It was presumed that he had eluded them and carried it with him.

It now begins to appear that Rickard really staid in the vicinity of the lake for some days after the shooting, the falling of the revolver near the tea house, some distance away from the nearest path to the place, giving this impression of the crime.

The discovery of the weapon was made by Special Police Officer Connolly, who detected the shining instrument lying in the brush. In the fall it was covered with the falling pine needles and leaves from trees, but the winds of the springtime have shattered these so the revolver was exposed to view.

The Rockingham County authorities held warrant for the arrest of Rickard

Yack state, he is amenable to the commitment under which he was first sent to Mattewan.

When the hearing began John B. Stauchfield and former Judge Morgan J. O'Brien were on hand to represent Thaw, while Deputy Attorney General Franklin Kennedy and Frank J. Cook appeared for the state.

A lengthy brief had been prepared by the state and was submitted by Mr. Kennedy. The first point made in it was that in interstate rendition, an extradited person, once within the jurisdiction of the demanding state, is subject both to its criminal and civil process. Many cases were quoted to cover this point.

The second point, briefly touched on, was that the principle laid down in the case of Laugelles against Georgia is applicable to Thaw's commitment to Mattewan and the authorities of Mattewan therefore have the right immediately upon his acquittal to take him into custody under such commitment.

In behalf of Thaw, his attorneys contended that the lower court should be reversed, as it was improper and unlawful for the state, after Thaw's no guilty of the criminal charge, to make use of his presence to confine him in Mattewan. After Thaw left New York state they claimed there was no way by which the state officials could cause his return except by charging him with a crime, and it had been shown that his escape from Mattewan was not a crime.

The real object and desire of the state officials at all times since Thaw left Mattewan, it was argued, was to recommit him to Mattewan.

LARGE ADDITION TO MARK H. WENTWORTH HOSPITAL

The Newell property on the corner of Pleasant and Melcher street has been purchased from Mrs. Anna E. Newell, and presented to the Mark H. Wentworth hospital for chronic invalids. The donor has not been made public but it is going to be a big addition to the present hospital.

The property adjoins the Wentworth Hospital, and it is a three story building with considerable land in the rear. It is understood that the property will be renovated and fitted up for hospital purposes and that a connection made with the present building. This will give the hospital, which is now crowded, many more rooms, in fact, double its capacity for good work.

The Mark H. Wentworth hospital with the new purchase, will own all of the property in the square on Pleasant street, bounded by Wentworth and Melcher streets and running back to the mill pond.

records reveals the rather amazing fact that Jim Jeffries is the la savate boxing champion of the world, a title which he won something like 15 years ago in Paris.

The la savate method of boxing, which was the only style of boxing that France knew up to a few years ago, permits the use of both hands and feet during the contest and the man with the most nimble foot and the heaviest kick usually was the victor in those bouts.

But Jeffries, in winning the championship, did not use his feet. He just used one of his paws—and he used it just once.

A short time after Jeff won the heavyweight championship of the world from Fitzsimmons, he made a tour of Europe. He met some of the best men in England and made mince-ment of them. Then he went to Paris under the management of John S. Barnes.

Jeff appeared at the Polly Marency Theatre, sparring with his brother, but the act did not go well. The Parisians weren't interested in fighting under the Marquis of Queensbury rules. They didn't understand it. But they did understand the la savate system. And that gave the manager of the theatre an idea.

The manager approached Barnes with a proposition for Jeffries to meet a fellow named La Blah, who then was the la savate champion of the world. Jeff to fight his own way and the Frenchman to be permitted to use both hands and feet.

The la savate system was explained to Jeff and after a bit of hesitancy Jeff accepted.

When the huge American stepped into the ring and saw his foe—a pigmy Frenchman—he laughed aloud. And, for a time, he refused to engage in the fight.

"I don't want to kill any one," he said.

"Ah, fear not, Monsieur Jeffries," said La Blah's manager. "Zee La Blah ees a feeble fellow, but ah!"

So Jeff agreed to fight, and stepped into the center of the ring, to face his midget foe as the gong sounded.

Jeff crunched and the Frenchman stood still with arms crossed on his chest about two feet away from Jeff. The cocky attitude of the Frenchman caused Jeff to laugh again, but the laugh was short-lived. Even as Jeff broke into a giggle, the Frenchman leaped into the air, and kicked Jeff in the jaw so hard that the sound of the impact was heard a hundred feet away. The Frenchman dropped lightly on his feet and again assumed his folded arms attitude while the surprised and stunned Jeff rubbed his walloped jaw and wondered what hit him.

The Frenchman, instead of following up his first attack immediately, and gaining a big advantage over Jeff while the American was partially stunned, danced around long enough to give Jeff a chance to recover from the blow of the Frenchman's hoof.

Jeffries then rushed toward the Frenchman like a maddened bull. The Frenchman whirled around and evaded the rush. He began circling the big like a marathon runner, with Jeffries after him. Suddenly the Frenchman turned and jumped into the air. Just as quickly, Jeffries stopped, set himself and then let loose with a terrific right. The blow was perfectly timed and caught the Frenchman on the point of his jaw as he was two feet off the ground. The fight was over.

The referee stepped to the ropes over the prostrate form of the beaten Frenchman, and in French, announced to the audience:

"Halt to Monsieur Jeffries, the greatest fighter in the world. Not only is he the champion of the world under the London prize ring rules, but he also is the la savate champion of the world because of his victory over Monsieur La Blah, our fallen idol."

Jack Johnson won one sort of championship from Jeffries, but he didn't win the other. And Jeff, to this day, remains the la savate champion of the world.

CRITICISES BUYING EXPERIMENTAL AIRCRAFT

The policy of the United States Army and navy in buying experimental flying machines was criticised in New York by President Thomas B. MacDonnell of the Aeronautical Society at its annual meeting last night. President MacDonnell reformed particularly to the two baby dirigibles in which the navy is about to invest, and which he said were discarded foreign types. The Zeppelin and similar rigid airships, he said, are the only types which have been proved useful after long practice.

MORENO SAILS FOR HAMPTON ROADS

The battleship Moreno, built in Delaware River for the Argentine republic left Philadelphia today for Hampton Roads, where a reception will be held tomorrow. After the festivities there the Moreno will return to Delaware Bay for additional fuel and will later proceed to Buenos

REGAINS SPEECH BY PRAYERS

Biddeford Woman Had Been Dumb for Five Months.

Biddeford, Me., March 23—Miss Celanre Dubois, 27, a Biddeford dress-maker has regained her health and speech, through prayer she believes.

For the past ten years she had been ill and five months ago she lost entirely the power of speech. She had been treated by Biddeford, Saco and Portland physicians, and all agreed that her case was hopeless, diagnosing it as paralysis of the vocal organs or chronic laryngitis.

The young woman is a devout member of St. Joseph's parish and on March 21 having become discouraged at the decision of the physicians, she began to make a novena at St. Joseph's. Day after day she knelt at the altar and prayed fervently that her health and speech might be restored. At last, while receiving communion she was startled to discover that the power of speech had come back to her.

Since that time she has grown steadily stronger, with almost every trace of her old trouble gone. She insists that her prayers for restoration to health were answered and expresses her heartfelt gratitude in almost every word she utters.

CASCARETS FOR BOWELS, STOMACH HEADACHE, COLDS

Clean your liver and constipated bowels to-night and feel fine.

Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, your liver and bowels regular to months. Don't forget, the children—their little insides need a gentle cleanser, too.

Doubles winter driving pleasures because it's the Lightest Six.

It's a pleasure to drive this Studebaker Light SIX at any time of year. It runs so velvety and drives so easily. But in winter, it's even more delightful.

For when the Studebaker engineers simplified its design and did away with hundreds of pounds of useless weight, they not only cut the cost of upkeep, the cost of tires and the cost of fuel;

—BUT they made it the LIGHTEST of all Light Sixes—the easiest SIX to drive and the easiest SIX to ride in. A STRONGER, longer-lasting car so deftly balanced and aligned that it answers to the slightest touch of two fingers on the wheel and STICKS to the road.

Such a SIX with its over-measure of power and its close-fitting top and stowaway curtains to give you all the protection and all the comforts of a heavier, closed car—such a SIX makes winter driving doubly delightful as you will appreciate when you ride in it or drive it. But won't you come in and see—and KNOW for yourself this handsome SIX that doubles the pleasures of winter driving

The Dignity of Work.

The rapid growth in young people of an indisposition to do ordinary work and to seek "positions" instead of "jobs" cannot have escaped the notice of any observant person. This development has been very pronounced in the last quarter century, with the result that thousands of young men and women who need to earn their living, and should be doing so at any honorable employment that presents itself, are living lives of idleness or semi-idleness and waiting for something "respectable" in the way of employment to turn up.

This fear of doing work that is beneath one's dignity manifests itself even among those who have attained good positions. The story is told of an employee in the federal department of commerce who recently complained to Secretary Redfield that he was required to do work that was beneath his position. The secretary is reported to have told the young man that he knew of no honest work that was beneath any man's dignity. He said he had done hard work, and even menial work, himself, and would do it again if necessary.

Secretary Redfield's view of the matter is absolutely correct in reality, but, as a New York newspaper satirically reminds him, it is "hopelessly out of date." The paper then goes on to say that what young men want nowadays are "positions in which their duties can be performed with the least possible effort and maximum of pay, and preferably in supervising the work of somebody else." The country is full of employees to whom the first consideration is not their fitness for their duties, but whether their duties fit their social position.

There is altogether too much of this thing among young men and young women. Dignity is all right, but it is a false notion that there is no dignity in honest work honestly performed. The prevalence of this mistaken view is responsible for the failure in life of thousands who could have successfully made their way in the world if they had been willing to buckle to the first opportunities that presented themselves and work their way up.

It is proper for young people to seek the best positions for which they are fitted, but they make a grave mistake when they decide that if they cannot have what they want they will have nothing and do nothing. There is no dignity in such a stand on the part of a young man or a young woman. Honest labor never robbed any one of dignity. To refuse to do it when necessary not only robs one of his dignity, but of his self-respect and the respect of his neighbors.

Demon Rum is certainly having a run for his money. As if local option and the agitation for state and national prohibition were not enough, the Poster Advertising Company of the United States has decided that after this year, when all present contracts will have expired, there shall be no whiskey advertisements on its posters. But it is hardly to be expected that the use of whiskey will cease entirely with its disappearance from the posters.

An avalanche in British Columbia wrecked a mining camp a few days ago, killing 56 people and injuring many others. Among the killed were Mining Engineer C. E. Copeland and wife of Seattle. The slide occurred in the night and the havoc wrought by the great mass of earth, rocks and snow that came down the mountain on the sleeping camp is beyond description. There is danger everywhere and all the time, in peace as well as in war.

Certain health authorities insist that the common cold is infectious and that it is not caused by sudden changes in the weather, exposure to drafts, etc., but is passed from one victim to another the same as any other infectious or contagious disease. If this is true it is time for all of us to stop abusing the climate, which is the favorite pastime of every person suffering with a cold.

Now it is the Texas fruit crop that has been ruined by frosts. This is a bad time of the year for the American fruit crop, but fortunately it has a way of recovering to such an extent that there is usually fruit enough at reasonable prices, and such will doubtless be the case this year in spite of the frosts in Texas and the little red birds in New Jersey.

A Chicago young woman declares there are four kinds of love. But one kind of divorce suffices for all.

CABLE LETTER

Paris, March 26—The official dispatches furnish many instances that truth indeed is stronger than fiction.
 1. Nogues, a soldier of the second class of the 55th Infantry regiment, aged 66, gave a noble example of devotion to his country by volunteering in the same ranks with his son, a young soldier of the 1914 class. Was killed in the trenches by a fragment of shell while his son was severely wounded at his side.
 2. Nogues, soldier of the second class of the 153 Infantry regiment, seriously wounded by a fragment of shell while his father was killed at his side.

 It was by the same shell at the same moment and side by side, that father and son were struck down.
 Quite a good spy story this and with quite a refreshing touch of originality, as told by the Matin on excellent authority. It was up in the north and far from Bethune, and towards dusk. A small procession appeared and made its way slowly and solemnly towards the French lines. It consisted of a captive Uhlan, straitly surrounded by two gendarmes, and at its head a brig-

William G. M'Adoo, Secretary Of the United States Treasury.

Photos by American Press Association.

Concern was felt for the recovery of Secretary of the Treasury William G. M'Adoo shortly after his operation for appendicitis. He did not respond as quickly as it was expected he would because he had let the operation go too long and was in a weakened condition. While it was admitted that he was in a serious condition, it was hoped that he would eventually recover. The doctors at that time said he might not be able to leave his bed for several weeks. Here are two late pictures of the secretary.

admiral in fine new uniform, an impressive figure.

The captive Uhlan was the best passport there could be, and the little procession passed through the French lines without hindrance. So the soldiers and their prisoner, who had a convincing hang-dog air, continued their walk until they reached and overpassed the first line of trenches. All the time it might have been noticed, but at first was not, they were taking a keen and very intelligent interest in their surroundings. They had almost got to trenches number 2, when a sergeant who was sitting under a tree smoking a powerful pipe with half a dozen of his men, caught sight of them. Hello, he said to his companions, "there's something rather fishy here. Three gentlemen to one prisoner. I have never seen that before. 'Get your rifles ready my boys.' Then coolly the sergeant, pipe still in mouth went up to the procession. 'Your papers, please,' he said to the splendid brigadier. The brigadier blustered. 'By what right,' he said in a thick accent. 'Up with your hands' cried the sergeant sharply, and his companions behind him raised their rifles significantly. Up went the hands of brigadier, gendarmes, and pretended prisoner—now a genuine prisoner enough.

Paris, March 25—In the old days the new show the "Affairs Deperdussin" was to come before the Assizes would have created something of a sensation in Paris, which would have rubbed up its recollections of the arrest eighteen months ago of a man, reputed a multi-millionaire, head of a great aeroplane firm, donor of an aeroplane, and recent purchaser of a historic chateau. Paris would have remembered too, with the sort of appreciation that she cannot but feel for criminals on a big scale, the amount of Deperdussin's alleged defalcations—more than $5,000,000. Not less would have been her somewhat cynical admiration of the extraordinary simplicity of the methods employed by the accused—how first of all he got a great bank to advance him a tolerable sum for the purchase of raw silk, and purchasing nothing, repaying out of the loan a fantastic percentage; then borrowed a sum slightly larger out of which he again paid a big dividend, and so went on always increasing his borrowing, till in ten years they amounted to $5,000,000. That Paris would have chuckled too and again rather cynically, at the offhandedness which ventured to show in the last year of the cumulative swindle orders for silk which exceeded the total value of silk imports from France and at the simplicity of a great bank, which blinded by its money, did not notice the crying discrepancy. As it is, the Deperdussin case will fall very flat. The bleeding of a great bank of a million pounds is a very little thing when all Europe's, outpouring blood and treasure.

Copenhagen March 26—The Archbishop of Denmark (Hosbourn) has asked the Danish savant Dr. E. B. Hansen, to examine the remains of Earl Bathwell, Queen Mary Stuart's third husband, which are at Pauzeville Church, Denmark and it is hoped now to establish the identity according to new information procured in England. It has not been absolutely settled that Bathwell's remains are still in Denmark, although that is the tradition, and it is likely that the Earl was buried there. Bathwell died at Dragsholm, in Denmark, and as nobody asked for his body, it was buried at Pauzeville, one of the most beautiful places in Denmark.

NASHUA WOMAN INJURED AT FIRE

Mrs. Huesti Fell Down Stairs in Burning Building.

A bell alarm from box 73, quickly followed a self alarm at 9:45 for a break blaze on the roof of a house occupied by Polish residents at 100 Ledge street, Nashua. The high wind made the outlook dangerous but the firemen quickly had the fire under control although the north end of the roof and the upper part of the frame house was considerably damaged.

The house, a four, tenement one is owned by Hon. J. J. Doyle, but one of the four tenements was occupied. The fire caught from the chimney on the outside. Loss about $100.

Mrs. James Muesti carrying a sewing machine fell down stairs and was injured. The house was occupied by James Muesti.

EXPECTATIONS AND HOPE

If expectations were shaped on judgment instead of hope, the expected would more often happen. The advertiser gets business not because he hopes for it but because he works for it. He sets out to secure trade and he builds and plans accordingly. He tells the public what he has to sell and why he thinks they want to buy. He meets his rivals in fair, frank competition in the advertising pages of the newspapers. He wins because his expectations were founded on good judgment.

MANCHESTER MAY HAVE FIRE DRILL TOWER

Observance of Fire Prevention
Day Suggested for Oct. 6.

The observance of a fire prevention day in Manchester October 6, in connection with other cities in the east and west is being agitated by prominent residents of that city.

The date is the anniversary of the big Chicago fire and especially in the middle west and western part of the country, it is quite generally and elaborately observed as a regular holiday. Pastors of the leading churches speak from their pulpits on subjects allied importance of taking all possible precaution towards preventing ravages from the flames and giving thanks for immunity from loss of property and life.

Mass meetings are thronged with citizens who listen to prominent men who are familiar with the topic, men who advance practical suggestions and offer rules of behavior that will lessen the great annual loss of life. These same men speak in the schools impressing upon pupils the importance of extreme care when they are about fire or combustibles.

Safely first films are shown in moving picture houses, tabuleaux symbolizing life conservation are presented, and fire departments, police, army, naval fraternal orders, schools, merchants and citizens join in extensive and beautiful parades.

Included in these celebrations are drills by members of the fire department which prove one of the most interesting features of the occasion. A glance at a program of one of these observances brings out prominently the use of a drill tower and Manchester agitators of the celebration feel that a drill tower on Concord Common opposite the central fire station on Vine street, is a necessity not merely for acquiring proficiency among the members of the department for the benefit of the celebration but as a matter of valuable training in methods of fighting actual flames.

CITY NEWS

Will be a Change

The recent inspection of the York Harbor and Beach Branch by the officials of the Boston and Maine is expected to lead to something in the way of different motive power on that line. While the railroad men have made no talk locally regarding such a move, it is known that the management will at no late date substitute either gasoline or electricity to move the cars on this branch which the Boston and Maine operates under a contract.

Did Not Make It

It will be realized how much the Navy department thinks of the good work turned out at the Portsmouth navy yard in the line of boat construction, when the attempt to have part of that work assigned to the Boston yard recently, the department made it plain that the past record made by the men in the boat shops here could not be duplicated, and that it was the intention of the secretary to let well enough alone and not make any change that would interfere with the good work that has been accomplished here for years.

Will Issue Workmen's Tickets Again

The Atlantic Shore Railway it is understood, will again issue tickets to the workmen who patronize the company and that a cut will be made in the rate of transportation between certain points and the navy yard. The tickets in use for many years were discontinued in February.

One To Each Company

The official program of the big firemen's muster held in this city in Sept. 1871 which is cherished by Engineer George N. Jones of the Fire Department is now hanging as a souvenir in the rooms of each company. The program has been neatly framed by Mr. Jones and presented to the several companies.

He is required to cover the Noble's Island bridge as well and makes three trips, the first at Kittery Junction, second at carpenter's shop near the toll gate, and the third at the gate tender's shanty at Noble's Island.

They All Deny It

A story comes from Kittery and the navy yard that a member of the marine guard recently changed places with one of the town police in the Kittery building and that the marine slipped one over on Kittery's bravest. Growth has it that the marine was placed under arrest by the civilian of-

CURRENT OPINION

Privilege, Legal and Illegal, the Cause of Social Discontent.

Whatever mistakes ex-President Roosevelt may have made and much as he may act on impulse instead of clear headed reason, he has at least done one thing. He has quickened tremendously the public conscience on common sense justice and injustice, for God has ceased to be a silent partner in the firm of privileges. He has begun to speak, and he speaks in ominous tones through the popular conscience.

This state of public opinion demands some straight thinking and careful, dispassionate consideration from all right minded people.

Why is the multimillionaire so unpopular today? What are the real springs and roots of the common suspicions under which he lies?

Inordinate riches sometimes rot the soul out of a man. If you want to find the dangerous classes in our civilization, dehumanized and demoralized and possessed of the devil, you will find them in two places—the slums of our great cities and the swell villas of Newport.

Swollen fortunes come into two classes—nonproductive activity, which is predatory, and nonproductive inactivity, which is parasitic. The root of the whole evil is privilege, legal and illegal.—By Rev. Charles D. Williams, Episcopal Bishop of Michigan.

WILL CAUSE A POLITICAL FIGHT

Manchester Delegation at Odds on Fire Commission
Bill.

The house judiciary committee this morning sent in a new draft of the workmen's compensation bill with a divided report. Major James F. Brennan signed the minority report pending, which was made a special order for next Tuesday morning.

It developed that a lively row is brewing in the Manchester delegation over the bill to create a fire commission there. Chairman Robert Pillsbury was up and so was Representative Harry Barrett and some others to see that Pillsbury did not get anything over on the bill. As a result, no attempt was made to act on the bill, but Barrett and Pillsbury had a warm discussion after adjournment, in which threats were made by Barrett, that the Republicans opposed to the fire commission bill would work with the Democrats on other measures unless there was a change of front on the fire commission bill.

FEDERAL LAW PROTECTS BIRDS

U. S. Supreme Court to Make Decision on Kansas Law.

In view of the fact that there is evidence that not only the public, but in many instances the press of the country also, is under the impression that the decision just rendered by Judge John C. Pollock of the Federal District court at Topeka, Kansas, in which he holds the federal law for the protection of migratory birds to be unconstitutional, is the final adjudication on that statute, the following statement correcting this erroneous impression has been issued by President John B. Burnham of the American Game Protective Association.

"Conservationists need feel no alarm over the Kansas decision. The supreme court of the United States now has before it on appeal a case from Arkansas in which the constitutionality of the law will be finally passed upon. That case lacks certain important elements, favorable to the sustaining of the law, which the Kansas case which will be incorporated with it will provide. In a sense then Judge Pollock's decision is a welcome one to those who are working to avert the destruction of the wild life of the country.

Isolation of Judges Triebner and Pollock.

The solicitor general of the United States has asked the supreme court for an early consideration for the test case as is possible but it may be that it will not be reached before next fall. We are hoping to have it passed upon this spring.

The federal law provides protection not only for game birds but for most of the country's most valuable and insectivorous species as well."

DARTMOUTH MAY HAVE CO-EDS

Dormitories and Faculty Appropriation for Women Offered College.

Hanover, N. H., March 26.—This little college Dartmouth, for which Daniel Webster made his famous speech to prevent it from becoming a university, may undergo a greater change than Webster ever conceived, if an offer recently made is accepted by the trustees of the college. This offer is in the form of two beautiful dormitories for women and additional faculty appropriations if the trustees will make Dartmouth co-educational.

When W. G. Knapp, secretary of the college, was interviewed concerning the acceptance of the offer he refused to make any comment on it, except to say that there is nothing in the charter to prevent the acceptance of this offer of making Dartmouth co-educational, and that a few years ago Mrs. Roy Follett, wife of an instructor in English here at Dartmouth, received a master's degree.

Early Morning Blaze With $10,000 Loss.

(Special to The Herald).
Milford, N. H., March 27.—The thirty-five guests of the Endicott Inn fled hastily from the building when it was discovered ablaze shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The guests fled in their night clothes, not having time to even partially dress. No one was injured.

The adjoining stables where 40 horses were kept were also destroyed. The horses in the stable were at once turned loose as soon as it was seen that the annex was doomed.

The new Milford high school building adjoining the hotel was threatened, but no serious damage was done owing to the good work of the firemen.

The loss to the hotel and stables is estimated to be $10,000.

POLICE COURT.

William A. Bates and Herbert Parker, two members of the First Company Coast Artillery Corps, were given a hearing in the municipal court on Friday afternoon on a charge of evading military inspection recently held by the company. They were ordered into court on a warrant sworn out by First Lieut. C. R. Rodwell, acting captain. Rodwell testified that both had the required previous notice of the inspection and according to the rules he could see no reason why they were not present. One of the men had recently applied for his discharge and on the strength of that he absented himself. The other was out of town on the date the company was inspected. They both finally pleaded guilty and a light fine of $3 was imposed, which they paid.

LEGISLATURE OPPOSED TO SUFFRAGE OPPOSED TO MOST BILLS DESIRED BY WOMEN

The Indiana Legislature not only refused to give women suffrage but treated with equal lack of consideration most of the bills in the interests of women. (We are glad to note that the women attending the meeting of the Interdenominational Missionary Society at Dana, Indiana, voted unanimously in favor of the passage of the suffrage bill).

There are many bills before our own Legislature which the Club women and other women of the State are backing. What will the outcome be? Will New Hampshire do better than Indiana?

The suffragists are watching with especial interest to see if the men who voted down equal suffrage will vote down the other progressive measures.

PLANS NEARLY READY FOR SEAMEN'S HOME

Board of Governors to Hold Meeting Tuesday Afternoon.

The building fund for the proposed Seamen's Home in this city is steadily increasing and plans for the building are practically completed. A copy of the proposed plans will be on exhibition in the city within a few days.

There is to be a meeting of the governing board at the First National Bank on Tuesday next at four o'clock, at which time many important questions will be discussed and the acceptance or rejection of the plans will probably be made at that time.

One of the most important questions to be decided upon is the location of the home. It is the intention of the board of governors to have the building located somewhere to the east of the square in order to give the men a chance to make any change of clothing before they cross the city, provided they care to do so. If the plans of the committee are finally adopted the enlisted men in Uncle Sam's service will have as fine a home as can be found in any city in the country. They intend to make the home as attractive as possible so as to give the men a club where they may have a place that is entirely their own.

FINED $20 AND COSTS AT DOVER

Fred Stone Found Guilty of Assault on Mrs. Hill.

Fred Stone was before the Dover municipal court Friday morning, charged with assault upon Mrs. Annie D. Hill of Fifth street. Stone lives opposite the Hill residence and Thursday, while under the influence of liquor, went over to call.

He went into the house and, from testimony, became decidedly obnoxious. Mrs. Hill tried to put him out, and he grabbed her by the hair of the head, knocking her down on the floor. It was further alleged. In the meanwhile William York, a one-legged man, who boards with the Hills, tried to come to the rescue and Stone in turn knocked him down. They finally succeeded in getting him out of the house.

Stone pleaded not guilty but did not have much to say. Judge William P. Mason ordered him to pay a fine of $20 and costs of $9.01, which he did.

LOCAL BOY ON WINNING TEAM

Philip Badger One of Yale Debaters Against Harvard.

Yale undergraduate debaters defeated teams representing Harvard and Princeton in their annual triangular debate on Friday night.

Arguing at Cambridge, Mass., on the affirmative of the proposition that the best interests of the United States demand a prompt and substantial increase in the army and navy, Yale was awarded a unanimous decision over Harvard. The blue students successfully upheld the negative of the question against Princeton at New Haven.

The winning team at Cambridge included Philip A. Badger of Portsmouth. Governor Walsh presided at the debate here.
